ARTIST STATEMENT

"Your life is more meaningful with transformative art. You deserve art that's good for your soul and shows people exactly who you are."

When was the last time you owned a piece of art that lowered your blood pressure, lifted your spirits and birthed a great conversation? I get it. As a busy professional, it's hard to find amazing, one-of-a-kind art. That's why for over 15 years I have been painting regenerative art, some of which is hanging next to an original Picasso. I want to create art that brings hope, healing, and a sense of possibility and community to the people who enjoy it.

Finding transformative art isn't easy. I know what it feels like to want one-of-a-kind art that you just can't find. If you're like so many of the people I know and admire, you're a confident, accomplished professional always on the lookout for the next big thing. You've probably wondered if there's any art out there that ticked those crucial boxes of uniqueness, sophistication, and self-actualization. This can often feel frustrating, like you're missing out or stuck on the sidelines. That's why I created ArtRegen. I want you to achieve all this so you can stop feeling like you're missing out.

Creativity is the lifeblood of my work, my art and my life. I love being on a journey of creative mastery and mystery, and I'm so grateful to be able to express my creativity and speak my truth through the symbolism of words and stories, as well as sound and color. My art operates on three different levels – abstract, object and motion. When you first look at the art, you might see an abstract pattern reminiscent of the kinds of patterns seen in nature. Look again and maybe you'll experience a subtle, intricate motion of the object and see it move within the context or background of the painting. The idea is that these three levels function together to center you, to help you become more present in the moment and more engaged. I want my art to help people form a deeper, more emotional and more regenerative connection with themselves and their lives.

ARTIST STATEMENT

Health is a creative process, and regenerative health requires imagination. Understanding the art in your personal space or work areas is part of the full mind-body-spirit experience of the art. Studies show that 'an enriched environment' can activate stem cells in the brain, which is part of our innate system for regeneration. My paintings draw on the science of light, color and abstraction to create sacred otherworldly spaces where people can tap into the magnificence of their own imagination and activate their innate power for self-healing and self-efficacy.

In my exhibitions, I connect visual and performing arts with fiction in order to create sacred spaces where people can travel through the doorways of their imagination to worlds that inspire them. As I'm most drawn to painting, my preferred medium is oil on canvas. The 'color chords,' or color combinations of my paintings, draw from a public art form known as Junkanoo that was developed in The Bahamas, the place of my birth.

Since 2007, my work has been shown in more than 25 solo and group exhibitions in The Bahamas, London, Las Vegas, New York, and Memphis, Tennessee. Many of my paintings have also been featured in juried publications, such as International Contemporary Masters. More recently, my paintings have sold within minutes of sharing the images to collectors online, resulting in 2020 exhibitions being pre-sold prior to the event. I am honored and excited that my paintings are being featured in British Vogue (May, June, July 2021), House and Garden (June, July and August 2021) and Tatler (August, September and October 2021). The more people who become exposed to my art and ArtRegen, the more people we can help own meaningful art that's good for their soul and shows others who they truly are.

BIOGRAPHY

Dr. Desirée Cox, MD, PhD is a Rhodes Scholar, Medical Doctor, Thought-Leader, Scientist, Visual Mixed Media Artist, and Founder/CEO of the Regenerative Art brand ArtRegen.

The first Bahamian Rhodes Scholar and first woman to win a British Caribbean Rhodes Scholarship, she has earned degrees from McGill University (Canada), Oxford University (UK) and Cambridge University (UK). She is also the CEO and founder of HEALinc360 (<https://www.healinc360.com>) and the HEALinc Future Health Innovation Summits, a movement-based organization with the mandate of championing a future health paradigm where medical therapy is driven by personal health and regenerative wellness (<https://www.healincfuturehealthsummit.com>).

For the past 15 years, Dr. Desirée has been painting regenerative art, some of which is now hanging next to an original Picasso. The objective of her work is to help accomplished professionals revolutionize their lives with sophisticated art that lowers blood pressure, lifts spirits, and births great conversation. Images of her oil-on-canvas paintings have been featured in world-renowned magazines and juried publications, such as British Vogue (2021), House & Garden (2021), Tatler (2021), and International Contemporary Masters. Her transformative art hangs in private collections all over the world and has been featured in more than 25 solo and group exhibitions in New York, Las Vegas, London, Shanghai, and the Bahamas. Her next solo exhibition is set to be held in Miami in August of 2021.

BIOGRAPHY

A true polymath, Dr. Desirée's unique understanding of science, biotech, and the aesthetics of regenerative medicine plays a pivotal role in her artistic expression. She is a Scientific Advisor to several biotech companies focused on Regenerative Medicine and Longevity; she has also developed clinical trials for testing the efficacy of various cutting-edge future health innovations and has published scientific articles in various trade journals. Dr. Desirée has held clinical and academic positions as university professor and psychiatrist at prestigious institutions in the UK, and she has consulted major Pharma companies such as Amgen, GSK and Novartis on strategic, regulatory and R&D aspects of the development of pharmaceutical medicines. From 2015 to 2021, she spearheaded the development of a fast-track regulatory system for Stem Cell and Regenerative Medicines and Medical Devices in The Bahamas, and she chairs the National Stem Cell Ethics Committee in The Bahamas.

Dr. Desirée has been recognized by the British Medical Journal as a “Renaissance Woman” for her application of psychological medicine to real world problems. In January of 2019, she was one of five recipients of the International Regenerative Medicine Action Award at the World Stem Cell Summit, held in Miami, Florida. In April of 2018, Dr. Desirée was invited to present at the prestigious 4th Annual Vatican Conference “Unite to Cure: A Global Healthcare Initiative,” alongside speakers such as Tony Robbins, Dr. Peter Diamandis, Dr. Sanjay Gupta, and Dr. Deepak Chopra. Dr. Desirée has also been a guest lecturer at a number of respected universities and academic institutions, such as Oxford University, La Sorbonne University (Paris, France), and the Hong Kong Polytechnic University. She is a former Honorary Professor at University of Exeter, UK and a member of the Department of Biomedicine, Rutgers University, USA. Dr. Desirée is currently an adjunct professor at University of California, Irvine, USA.

BIOGRAPHY

Much of Dr. Desirée’s artistic vision is also rooted in her African and Caribbean ancestry, with the progressive Bahamian performance art of “Junkanoo” being at the forefront of her energetic color palette and abstract subject matter. A native Bahamian, she pays homage to the African diaspora and her Caribbean descent through her active participation in Bahamian-based arts, biotech, and regenerative wellness spaces. At the 40th Independence Celebrations in 2013, the Bahamas Government honored Dr. Cox by issuing a 70-cent stamp into circulation bearing her photograph.
